

If you live in the UK and have yourself a HTC Touch HD, do a little happy dance. The device is finally compatible with the BBC iPlayer. No hack or any other modification is necessary. Of course, only those in the UK can use it—the service will only allow UK IP addresses to access it. Plus, BBC iPlayer still only works over WIFI instead of the more powerful (and faster) HSDPA. This means it's not quite as nice as it could be, but it's still great to be able to watch your favorite television shows on the Touch HD.

via WM Power User